Description

Read other profiles. To know how to write a profile essay read how other writers do it. Find feature profiles in the New Yorker. You can also find personality profiles throughout The New York Times, particularly in the Sunday edition of the paper. Look for what information the writer presents about their subject. At the end of the piece, see if you have any lingering questions about the person to make sure you fill those gaps in your own story.

Do your prep work. When you know who the subject of your piece is, start doing some prep work. Research the person. If they're well-known, it will be easy to find information online. It's important to use reputable websites in order to find accurate information—this will also save you effort when you or an editor fact-check the article before it's published. The second part of your prep work will be writing out the questions you want to ask your subject. After doing your research and have read other articles, ask questions other writers haven't asked yet.

Reference

Many companies would mention a corner stone as something per their vision, IG Group however, put the proof behind the words and by saying that IG Tech is the corner stone and stable income generation to support the rest of the group's initiatives, means to showcase that clientele, build over past 8 years are not only the customers, but partners, coming from leaders of the industries in Cambodia and in the region.

IG TECH GROUP

The entertainment engagement company, Bridgeline Digital, offers a welcoming deep blue and white color palette and a short landing page video loop of a serene waterfront. Since their business bridges a lot of different internet services, including eCommerce, marketing solutions, and web content management, it's probably for the best that their homepage describes each in thorough bullet points to better help visitors understand their services. Taking a peek at the same site from a mobile device shows all their information in a narrower, less graphical form so all visitors can easily load and interact with the relevant calls to action.

It's easy to see that Logitech's design is pretty unique, but is it effective? Their bold colors typically take up the whole background in a product image in order to stylize their brand, letting the natural angles and colors of the products shoppers look for inspire believable depictions of everyday use.

MISSION

Develop a well-suited platform to enable transformative incomegenerators with value innovation.

VISION

Be a leader in developing next generation through fully integrated innovative technology, programs and solutions.

VALUES

We instill True Love to create True Family that will achieve True Success for everyone.

However, when you look around yourself, you can easily capture the vision. The bigger picture. The dream. For someone, the unrealistic visualization of life. For others, myself included, the opportunity.

The opportunity to grow, to build ourselves, our lives and our personal and national wellbeing from the ground up - not by a magical powers or by the right of the birth, but by the hardship, dedication and visionary acceptance of simple fact:

Such as every dream deserves the dreamer to live it by the nightfall, thus well every vision deserves the chance... to be transformed.

Transformed into what? That part is on each of us to answer. For IdeaGroup International, I and team around me made our decision. We live by the pursuit of realizations of our visions. For us. For our country and for the World we live in today and those who come after us.

Puthkiry Kim

Chairman

Waking up every morning of your childhood into the world which teaches you only one thing: "Do not dream., Dreams do not come true," makes you ask yourself if it is really the case. At least for me it happened that way.

As I grew older I refused, denounced and objected everyone and everything trying to put me into one box. The big box of simplicity, grandness and great opportunities available to you only under the condition you have been born into them.

Every vision deserves the chance...
